GRANITE CITY
SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL
GRANITE CITY,
ILLINOIS

Official seal

In 1967, the Warrior yearbook staff introduced the official seal for Granite City Senior High School. Its design is the result of the combined ideas of several members of the yearbook staff. At top center is the lamp of learning above a shield surmounted by the motto, "Wisdom." In the left upper segment of the shield is a quill and inkstand, representing scholarship; to the right of it is the gavel of democratic parliamentary procedure, and below is the book of knowledge, opened through scholarly endeavor. Below the shield is the Latin inscription, "Scientia Ipsa Potestas Est." (Knowledge, itself, is power.) Surrounding all is the continuous chain linking the senior classes of Granite High. At the bottom is the founding date of the first high school in Granite City, 1898.

G.C.H.S. in transition
1970-71

"It's my home away from home."

On November 30, 1970, a fire swept through the central portion of our school, disrupting classes and activities. The fire completely destroyed the auditorium and caused extensive damage to surrounding classrooms. For a time, everyone realized how much the high school meant to them. A part of our lives was going up in smoke and flame.

But activities were soon back to normal

Except for use of the auditorium and typing rooms, the school routine was soon reestablished, and the school was again a normal part of our lives.

No longer a thing of disaster, fire again becomes a welcome friend.

"Oh my, I shouldn't taken that last drink."

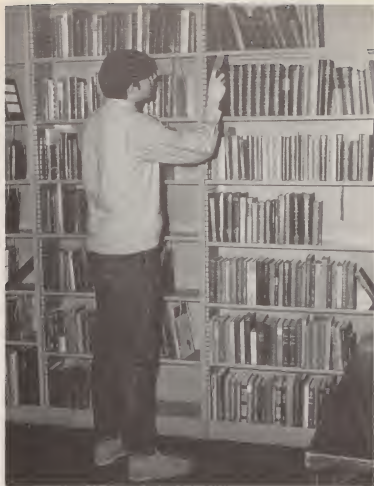

"9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1!"

... and so were students and faculty members.

"Let's see if we can fake out these problems by using simple math."

"The library contains a wealth of knowledge, I wish I had the wealth or the knowledge."

Working like a dog!!

Student activities again blossom to their fullest

"They told me to show up because they wanted some dignity in the place."

"Hang those Tigers!"

G.C.H.S. is on

Athletes, intellectuals, maintenance men, socialities, instructors, administrators, club members, non-conformists, doers and dreamers move Granite into the future. Each adds to the total picture of a dynamic Granite, on the move ...

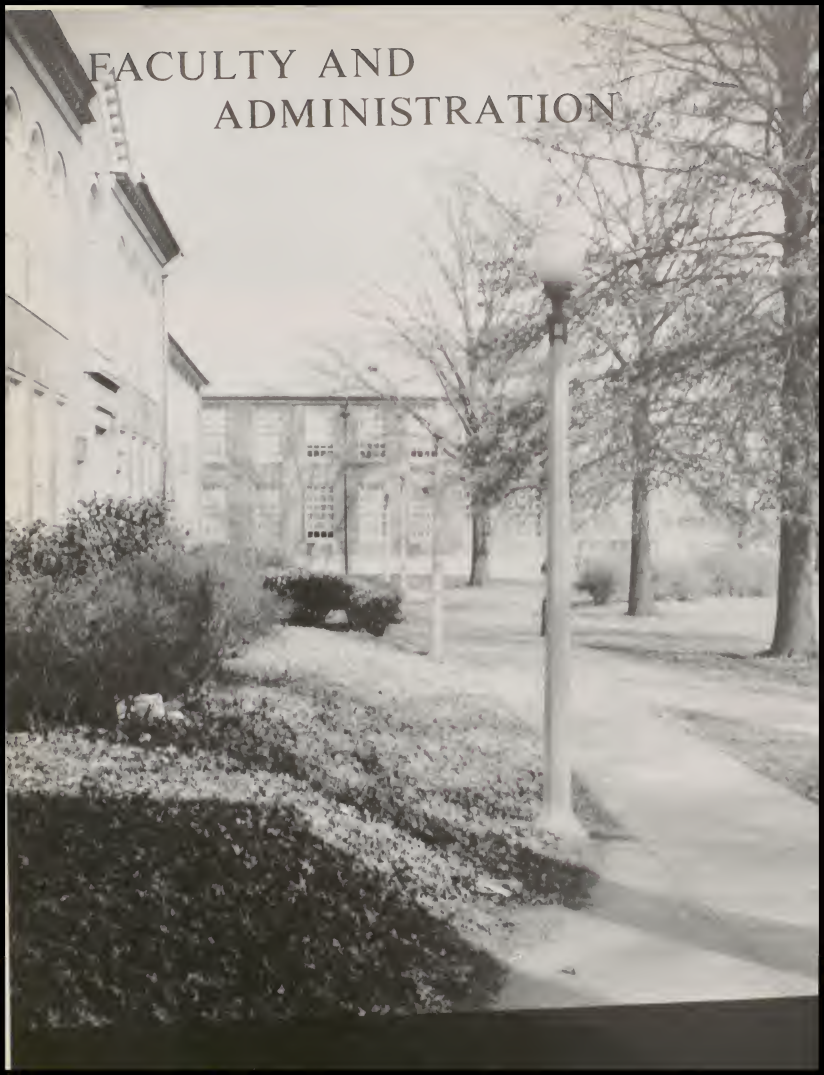

the move again . . .

Twelve years of diligent study have produced intelligent and sophisticated young adults ...

.. who now move on to take the stage
of world destiny.

With the end came the start

Early fall, mid-semester, and then--graduation. Three years. Long years, but short. Years filled with studies, work, people, and fun.

To each graduate the years meant something different. To most, they had been filled with hard work, gay times, mixed-up feelings about the future, decisions, and cramming for tests. Three years filled with regrets and full-fulfillments. All of that is past, as we stand at the threshold of decision--graduation.

Graduation. The end, yet the beginning. The beginning of a new life. Graduation--a cap and gown, a long walk down the aisle, a diploma, a crossroad in our lives.

"Would you change the channel please.
It's a repeat."

"Why is everyone staring at us Mr.
Nelson."

"Why of course, ... E=MC2!"

"I can't understand why I didn't get class bod??"

"But I brushed my teeth this morning!!!"

"I wish that I could learn how to turn this dumb machine on."

Debbie Martin, Treasurer; Judy Morris, Secretary; Dennis Ross, President; Bob Wiggins, Vice-President.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of understanding the cultural context of the research. It highlights the need for researchers to be sensitive to the values and beliefs of the communities they are studying. This is particularly important in the field of education, where cultural differences can significantly impact learning outcomes. The paper then moves on to discuss the challenges of conducting research in diverse cultural settings. It notes that researchers often face difficulties in establishing rapport with participants and in interpreting their responses. To address these challenges, the paper suggests several strategies, including the use of local researchers and the development of culturally appropriate research instruments. The final part of the paper discusses the importance of ethical considerations in cross-cultural research. It emphasizes the need for researchers to obtain informed consent from participants and to ensure that their research does not cause harm or exploitation. The paper concludes by noting that while cross-cultural research is a complex and challenging endeavor, it is also a highly rewarding one that can lead to a deeper understanding of human behavior and culture.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1 million (Office for National Statistics 1999). The number of people aged 85 and over has increased by 0.5 million.

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop services to meet the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for the care of the elderly, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of older people.

The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) to ensure that older people are able to live independently for as long as possible; (2) to ensure that older people are able to access the services they need; (3) to ensure that older people are able to participate in the decisions that affect their lives; and (4) to ensure that older people are able to live in a safe and secure environment.

The strategy also sets out a number of key objectives, including: (1) to reduce the number of older people who are in care homes; (2) to improve the quality of care in care homes; (3) to improve the quality of care in the community; and (4) to improve the quality of life for older people.

The strategy is a key document for the development of services for older people. It sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of older people, and provides a framework for the development of services to meet the needs of the ageing population.
